IV. Other Key Concepts:

A. Stages of Missionary Work:
   1. Pioneer Stage - initial contact.
   2. Parent Stage - expatriates train national leadership
   3. Partner Stage - participating as equals
   4. Participant Stage - missionary works by invitation

B. E-1, E-2 and E-3 evangelism:
   1. E-1 evangelism takes place within the same culture and is the easiest and most effective kind. As compared to Acts 1:8 this would be like ministry in Jerusalem and Judea.
   2. E-2 evangelism is moderately difficult and takes place in a different culture. Culture and language become barriers to the effort and require the adaptation of the evangelist/missionary to local realities. This is a clear threshold for the new converts needing their own congregation. As compared to Acts 1:8 this would be like ministry to Samaria.
   3. E-3 evangelism is significantly difficult and takes place in a very different culture. Because the cultural and linguistic barriers are so great the adaptation is usually very lengthy for the evangelist/missionary. As compared to Acts 1:8 this would be like ministry to the “ends of the earth”.
   4. Note: E-3 is clearly the greatest priority strategically as this is what is needed to bridge from existing ministries into the remaining unreached people groups in the hidden and extreme cultural/linguistic/geographic/political pockets of the world.

C. People Movement:
   1. A people movement is an evangelistic chain reaction within a people (clan, tribe or caste – where folks are bound primarily by blood, intermarriage, and race) that results in the true Christianization (reborn in the spirit – Jn. 3) of a significant portion of their population.
   2. Outside the individualist West these peoples are usually very interdependent, and any significant decision is made by group consensus after careful consideration.
   3. To evangelize individuals and attempt to pool them artificially into congregations is not only difficult, it disillusion the group against the missionary and labels the convert as a traitor.
   4. It is much better to evangelize in these regions as Peter did with Cornelius’ family and Paul did with the family of the Philippian jailer – they shared the gospel to them all together and let them respond as they normally would in a consensus. This way the whole group can be won and “the group mind is brought into a life-giving relationship to Jesus as Lord.” This has the added benefit of making Christianity appear more indigenous and less foreign.

D. Women’s Key Roles in Mission:

It is undeniable that women have played a central role in God’s mission efforts throughout history. Hudson Taylor wrote in 1888 that “we are manning our stations with ladies.” The following are some of the ways that such women have been used so strategically.
1. Women have stepped up when men couldn’t or wouldn’t like after the civil war and the World Wars earlier this century. Deborah is the quintessential Biblical example of this in the Old Testament.

2. Women have had special “ins” to ministry like Amy Carmichael getting in to the women’s section of Hindu temples or sharing the Gospel within harems in Muslim controlled areas.

3. Women are naturally relation oriented and not doctrinally oriented. This allows them to get along well with a great variety of people.

4. Women often demonstrate perseverance when some men get discouraged for lack of results.

5. Women are compassionate and committed to healing. Their efforts in medical ministry are incalculable and they seldom seek recognition.

6. Women are the first choice for ministering to other women (Titus 2:3-5) and naturally relate well to children.

7. Women are considered non-threatening and can get away with ministry men cannot sometimes like teaching Imams about the scriptures by simply pointing them to Bible texts rather than arguing theology.

8. Their equal intelligence and often superior verbal abilities makes them excellent candidates for Bible translation.

E. Inverted Homesickness:

1. Samuel Zwemer (Famous missionary to Muslims) coined a most descriptive term to describe an emotional condition of pioneer missionaries. He said they had a “passion to call that country their home which was most in need of the Gospel” and that “before this passion all others died.” It is a constraining, persistent, yearning to preach the Gospel where “Christ is not yet named” and where no man has yet laid a gospel foundation (Romans 15:20).

2. I completely understand what Zwemer was referring to and would, in my own words say “inverted homesickness” is longing to be “home” in one’s country of ministry even while visiting one’s birth or base country.
